

Synchronization with the Local People for Better Health Improvement Efforts

The efforts to make the world healthier are some kinds of efforts that the world should do together. As we all know, without the support from many people, this kind of efforts would be useless. As we all know, all things need some information supports to make the mission accomplished. In this local public health improvement effort, the information of the local condition is something real urgent.

Somehow, the local community might have some sorts or local wisdom that could be synchronized with the health improvement programs that were initiated by the government. Certainly, it would be better if the outside, such as the government involved the local people with the local wisdom in their programs. The government's duty is to manage the local wisdom into something better. The local information of the public health level would also be a great help for the government health improvement programs.

That is why, it should be synchronized. If it could be synchronized to make sure that all the sources that available could be maximized for the benefits of the local people. In this case, all the available sources should be able to be applied for the health improvements of the local people.
